Santiago Garces

Research & Strategy Analyst | Market Intelligence, Financial Regulation, and AI-Enabled Operations
New York, New York, United States

Summary

I am an analytical professional working at the intersection of market research, competitive intelligence, regulated-market analysis, and AI-enabled workflow execution. My background combines financial-services operations, regulatory analysis, structured writing, and systems thinking. At a regulated financial institution in Colombia, I managed 657+ PwC fiscal-audit requirements across legal, finance, and operations, and designed an AI-based routing and classification system using Claude API, OpenAI API, and Python that reached 97%+ assignment accuracy while reducing manual workload by 24+ hours per week. I also built research, workflow, and decision-support systems through Blevine Consulting, where I produced market notes, competitor scans, and AI-enabled operating tools for B2B use cases. My academic work focused on financial regulation, market concentration, and fintech innovation across Colombia, Brazil, Singapore, and the UK. I do my best work in remote, writing-heavy, research-driven environments where clarity, judgment, and execution matter. I am particularly interested in roles related to market research, competitive intelligence, strategy analysis, fintech and regulated markets, financial research support, and AI evaluation. Based in Medellín, Colombia. Open to remote international roles, contract work, and selective relocation opportunities.
